

SUMMARY

This episode deals with the points, lines and planes as the basic elements in design. It discusses the formation and various attributes of the elements. The various ways of space making with the different permutation and combination of the elements are also discussed. The building examples demonstrate the qualities and the application the qualities in architecture. Finally the formation of a 3d volume or 3d form and the various qualities of a form are discussed.