

Summary

This lecture has emphasised the importance of studying and understanding building services for architects. The basics of water like sources of water supply, quality of water are all discussed. The nature of impurities present in the water, the various tests to identify its effect and water treatment processes is also detailed. An overall understanding of water and its basics is provided to develop an awareness about the environment.