

Summary

This lecture discussed about the concept of rational and practical design method called limit state method and about the characteristic strength of materials, characteristic load and partial safety factor in detail. And also, the assumptions made in limit state method of collapse – flexures are explained in detail. Finally, the stress-strain relationship of concrete and steel were explained.