

Summary

Long span structures are difficult to understand, so we shall look at systematic way of understanding them further, with different types of classifying into types so that when we see a structure, we can quickly sort the type and try and understand the depth of structural essence in it. We shall also look at pneumatic structure and the strength of pressure and just air to hold structures up and holding.