

SUMMARY

This session learnt about another important style of architecture which had its influence in a few towns and cities in India during the British era. Victorian architecture is the style of architecture that was originated in order to honor Queen Victoria. The Victoria Memorial hall in Kolkata is a prime example of the Victorian style of architecture. Its design and features and other such buildings have been discussed. Also discussed are the typical elements of this particular kind of architecture. The town of Cochin which was influenced by a few nations like Goa and Pondichery, its planning and important buildings are also talked about in this lecture