

Objectives

The topic covers from an introduction to sustainability and sustainable development. The chapter continues to discuss about Brundtland definition and its three pillars/dimension of sustainable development - Environment, Economy and society. The environmental aspect discusses the importance of environmental protection and the ways to address it; economy pillar is the opportunities for growth with increase in GDP and benefits and Social aspect of sustainable development is all about people and security.