

Summary

This session would lend you information on the key role of housing in the urban process and defines housing as a process in itself. It will help you understand how housing (a part of real estate sector) thrives and is a threat to the society now. It explains the present housing need/demand and supply based on statistical data and proves the search of housing has an interface with the growing rate of urbanization. It also explains architecture's key role in housing.