

Summary

Communication in relation to health education involves different methods like lectures, group or panel discussions, symposia, poster or exhibit presentation etc. Every methods of health education have its own merits, drawbacks as well as their own sphere of effectiveness. In addition it has to overcome the barriers of communication (e.g. physiological, psychological, environmental and cultural). It has been observed that different educational methods may specially be given in imparting health education. Therefore, methods of imparting health education can be furnished through the following three different ways i.e. a) Correlation with different subjects, b) Educational methods and c) Teaching aids.