

SUMMARY:

For any individual, group, event, organization to be successful a leader is essential. A good leader is one who takes a decision after due consideration and does not fumble once the decision has been taken. Good leaders are very important for the success of any venture and also its propagation. In recreation the recreation leader is responsible for planning, implementing, propagating, popularizing, and also conducting follow up to see the effectiveness of the program. It is not an easy task, the recreation leader has to possess a unique skill set so as to fulfill all the tasks. The recreation leader has to be up-to-date with the latest trends so as to keep the participants interested and to keep them coming back again and again. The recreational leader has to work in coordination with his superiors who he reports to and also take feedback from the stakeholders and participants from time to time to improve the quality of the program.
