

SUMMARY

Any device which supports, supplements or reinforces the teaching method adopted by certain teacher to effectively communicate certain items of information to students is known as teaching aids. They are broadly classified as audio aids, visual aids, audio visual aids and activity aids which are further classified as projected and non-projected teaching aids respectively. They are information carrier and if selected keeping in view to suit the teaching objectives and unique characteristics of the special group of learners can promote and encourage learning in teaching learning activity more effectively. Teaching aids therefore, is an important tool used by a skilled teacher to cause a meaningful learning in the student by engaging the learner various senses to actively participate in the educational process.