

Summary

In this chapter we can summarize that lesson is a guide map, a concrete future plan, a channel, a method devised by a teacher to mobilize his or her resources efficiently and effectively to crystallize his or her thought and then to put the same into action. Planning helps in systematizing the whole thing and provides direction leading towards achievement of the goal sought to be achieved. A teacher has to decide in advance what to teach and how to teach. While doing so, the teacher, in fact, prepares the plan for his or her lesson. This helps in refreshing his or her memory and organizing his or her thought. Lesson plan is a very effective tool for the teacher to streamline his or her teaching strategy. Lesson plan is essentially an experience in anticipatory teaching. Lesson plan is important because an unplanned lesson is like wanton wind that has neither direction nor stability. Instead of being any help to the teacher, unplanned lesson will rather confuse the teacher as well as the students.
