

OBJECTIVE

- Introduction to cereal technology is to study the various types of cereals, their importance to the world, their structure. The chemical composition of cereals and their commercially available processing technology is also explained.